Website Officer Manifesto

Who am I?

- I am a second year CompSci and the current JCR Website Officer
- I have experience in website management, both from undertaking this role for the last year and from managing other website
- I also have experience with general programming and working with Linux systems

What have I done over the last year?

- I have updated much of the content on the website, with the aim of producing a reliable online resource (including providing an online archive of JCR manifestos and meeting minutes to provide transparency and accountability)
- I ran the technical side of the room ballot, including introducing online registration to replace paper registration forms
- I am currently developing an updated site design to provide an easier user interface, and hope to update the main website with this soon

What would I do?

- Continue to provide a useful and up-to-date resource for undergraduates at Fitz
- Work with Apriya to deliver the room ballot system, and investigate possibilities for providing more resources via the website
- Work with other JCR officers to provide online resources and information as required
